How to Choose the Perfect Groom, Groomsmen and Wedding Suit

Picking a wedding suit can be a real fun part of planning for your special day. Whether it's the colour of the suit, or getting the perfect fit – men's weddingwear is the blending of personality, comfort and theme.

It doesn't matter if you are a groom getting ready for his wedding, a groomsman searching for matching formal clothes, or just a guest going to a particular event, knowing the various suit designs can lead you to believe in your choice.

Suits Plus is a specialist menswear retailer based in Bristol, UK, offering a selection of men's suits in Bristol, wedding suits, three-piece suits, tweed suits, blazers, waistcoats and boys' suits. With online shopping and an in-store experience, Suits Plus helps customers explore formalwear for weddings and other special occasions.

This guide explains how to choose a wedding suit, compare popular styles, coordinate a wedding party and select an outfit that suits your needs.

1. How to Choose the Perfect Men's Wedding Suit

The wedding suit you choose will be appropriate for the ceremony venue, seasonally appropriate, individual to you and comfortable.

Things to consider when thinking to buy a suit.

Wedding theme: You can always dress up for a black-tie night-time wedding – at home, or should we say in the country, you might want to try some "country touches," such as tweeds, or a look which is a little more "au natural."

Seasonality: Summer: Everything lighter in colour and fabric. Autumn /Winter: Layers and textures in darker more muted colours.

It can be up to you – you need to make sure you are able to be comfortable and also look like you're organised and neat.

Colour blend: Choose a colour that will form part of your wedding colour scheme as well as complement your wedding dress.

Cost: Review all the items that are the complete set of the vest, shirt, shoes and accessories.

Ask that they pre-read them so that you will be able to quickly select from them on your wedding day to reduce your work load.

2. Two-Piece vs Three-Piece Suits

Second when you purchase mens suit it comes in two piece or three piece.

Two-Piece Suits

Two piece suit – a outfit of formal dress made up of a coat or jacket as well as pants. Two piece suits are ideal for occasions that take place around the table at a work meeting, a reception, or a marriage as well as many other occasions.

Benefits include:

- A clean, classic appearance.
- Versatility for different occasions.
- Flexibility when styling shirts, ties and accessories.

Can you take the jacket on and off? Do you take the trousers off and on when necessary?

A two-piece wedding suit can be an excellent choice for grooms who prefer a simple, modern look.

Three-Piece Suits

A three-piece suit is a suit with a waistcoat or vest of the same material as the jacket and trousers. This is usually thought of as being more formal looking.

Your groom might choose these three piece suits for his wedding; he wears them well and he will be so smart in his wedding that he may even be tempted to take his jacket off once in a while saying his vows.

Choose a three piece suit that fits well with the fit between the jacket and the trousers. Make sure that the waistcoat is also well fitted.

Both are stunningly elegant. You simply decide just what sort of wedding you are having and which style you want and how you desire to use the gown.

3. Choosing the Best Wedding Suit Colour

The colour of a perfect wedding look Colour should co-ordinate with the season, theme and with your accessories.

Navy Wedding Wear Suits

Navy is definitely one of those colours that can be worn to both a traditional and a more modern wedding. It also goes really well with white shirts and black or brown shoes and accessories of any colour.

Grey Wedding Suit

I've only scratched the surface of the huge variety of grey suits available. Bright shades of grey are a great way of refreshing your dark coloured suits, with the smarter shades of charcoal grey replacing the usual light grey.

Wedding Suits in Black

The black suit may be a more elegant evening dress, The others times, Black suits are better suited for elegant evening celebrations. Dinner suit is generally a more appropriate dress code for black tie.

Brown & Tweed Wedding Suits

Swarthy, grass green and textured tweed pairs of styles for woodland, rural and fall weddings. Coordinate with a matching waistcoat, tie or leather shoes for a holistic look.

Selecting a Colour

Think about the venue, bride'smaid's gowns, Wedding day hues plan & location florals right before you arrive at your choice. Be sure the theme runs in the course of the morning, but to not possess the same bride'smaid.

4. How to Choose the Right Groom's Suit

What the groom wears is maybe the most important thing for the wedding styling, it can be also something which the groom loves so much but it could be so comfortable even during the entire length of the ceremony, photos & party.

First of all - Style. A blue, black or charcoal suit will make a statement for a more traditional wedding but if you're having a more casual affair then there really is no limit to what you can wear!

-the shoulders will match, and it closes nicely without gaping -the pant is relaxed.

Be noticed in these funny waistcoats, tie, pocket square or buttonhole. Or to make your groom even more noticeable add a dash of fun.

Book your fittings late, so you have plenty of time to make changes. You should leave enough time to have everything else completed by the day of your event, to make sure that nothing is left out and everything will come together well.

5. How to Coordinate Groom and Groomsmen Suits

Coordinate groomsmen outfits for a cohabited look.

But that does not mean that we all have to be wearing same kind of cloths.

Some possible solutions are:

- Use a more traditional colour for the groom and groomsmen.
- Combine the two sets of attire with a pocket square or a tie.
- For his own use that the groom may be "got at."
- Choose shoes that will match the colours.
- Think about your venue and season.

Check sizing and availability early enough before the wedding date.

If you have got a big wedding planned, then planning ahead and keeping open communication is key, be sure you give yourself plenty of time for fittings and accessories so you don't have any deadline time limits.

Suits Plus is one shop not to forget when looking to create a matching outfit as they are a grooms and groomsmen weddingwear shop.

6. Are Tweed Suits Suitable for Weddings?

My vintage, rustic, country wedding day perfect.

As they are in a textured fabric these are suitable for outside country houses or even an event in autumn and winter. Some with the different styles and colours of tweed are acceptable for a wedding for something less Trapucky.

Tweed suit style

- A crisp white or light-coloured shirt.
- A complementary waistcoat.
- Your tie, in with the suit.
- Brown leather shoes for a coordinated appearance.
- The other basic data however does not agree with the weave.

Remember that the type of wedding you will want is not solely a classic wedding. Even now, you can still choose to have a trendy wedding by combining stylish accessories with your classic wedding.

7. Choosing Boys' Wedding Suits and Page Boy Outfits

Complete your wedding party. Page boys and other youngsters in the wedding party may be dressed along the same lines as the adults but in a style that doesn't lead to any discomfort.

Weigh-in for the boys whether be passing, age, the temperature and the wedding time.

As a guide, try to select one colour to co-ordinate the page boys outfit with the grooms. You don't have to go to the trouble of all matching outfits, just a theme, like grooms suits and pages suits, or grooms waistcoats and page waistcoat etc.

Check that the jacket and trousers do not restrict movement, particularly where young children are more likely to sit, stand and walk about.

Also it is advised to test size and allow time for rectification.

Suits Plus has boys' suits to complement its own selection of men's suits and evening wear. This makes it easy to get the whole family coordinated for the wedding.

8. How Should a Men's Suit Fit?

The fit is one of the most important factor to make a smart look. A suit can cost a fortune and still be too baggy or too tight or not proportioned right.

Check out this suit-fitting guide.

Sling--Shoulders: Wrinkles in the jacket from pulling over the shoulders.

Chest: The coat should fasten with ease, with no pulling at the buttons.

Sleeves: some show of your shirt cuff is desirable, possibly one or two sleeved length depending on style and proportions.

The waist rubber can be loose, wear comfortable, the leg cuff does not shake.

The vest is supposed to fit closely to the shirt. Don't see a gap or pulls on the front of the shirt.

Movement: Sit, walk, and lift your arms and see if the whole group is still comfortable.

This wasn't included in the video but anything that isn't a perfect fit out of the box can always benefit from some tailoring. For those large events such as your wedding day it's worth trying everything on ahead of time.

9. When Should You Buy a Wedding Suit?

Allow time to make style selections for nails and fits can be booked. Stock must be in stores. Start early.

Here's a realistic wedding outfit timeline:

A few months before the wedding day: - Research about the dress style, colours, budget and theme for the wedding.

Two to three months before your wedding: Buy and have all of the suits bought in case you have several groomsmen.

A fortnight ahead of: Have your fancy-dress suits tailored and fitted if required. The Suit can be accessorised and tried on.

Observe the footwear the shirt the tie the waistcoat, arrange the complete matrimony garb.

Timings are just a guide for when to start and plan for. Not a date for everything, it will depend on stock, how many it's for and how many you need to make.
